

ST. PAUL SAILS, HER CABINS FULL OF PASSENGERS

Duchess of Marlborough, Lady
Granard and a Host of Writers Aboard.

Reminiscent of the days when the ships of the American line were the fleetest and finest in the transatlantic service was the sailing of the St. Paul for Liverpool to-day with 900 passengers. The list of passengers carried the names of nobles, millionaires and people of prominence such as have not travelled on the American line since the ships were relegated to the one cabin class.

The St. Paul left the American pier at 10:22 o'clock. Half an hour later she arrived at the pier 1,600 sacks of European mail, brought down from the Kronprinzessin Cecilie at Har Harber.

A wireless message was sent to the St. Paul, which halted her off Staten Island. She remained there until 12:10 o'clock, while tugs transferred the 1,600 sacks of mail from the pier. Altogether, the St. Paul carried 4,015 sacks of mail, which is a record for an American line outside the Christmas season.

The Duchess of Marlborough was one of the happiest of passengers. This was her third start for Europe since war was declared. She is anxious to return to London and engage in Red Cross work. Her reservation called for a small inside cabin, but through the good offices of the Baron von Broom of the Hotel Vanderbilt she exchanged with a gentleman who had engaged an outside room and bath.

For half an hour before sailing time three agents of the British Government inspected the ship, scrutinizing every passenger. It is believed that two of the stowaway passengers are German army officers taking a chance on getting home on an English ship. Of course nothing could be done here, but as soon as the St. Paul reaches Liverpool she will be searched, and if the suspected pair are found to be officers in the enemy's army they will be detained.

American and English newspaper men going abroad to write pieces about the war are numerous. Among them were J. J. Spurgeon of The World, John T. Burke of The Herald, Arthur Rubel of The Tribune, R. L. Lewis and C. L. Smith of The Associated Press, W. N. Jackson of The London Times, Frederick Lanson of The London Telegraph, James Bagnall, Irvin S. Cobb, Will Irvin and Sewell Haggard. Mr. Cobb perished freely under the weight and responsibility of a heavy black bag, which he passed over to Purser Hines at the earliest opportunity. The bag contained $4,500 in gold.

Other passengers who will sit at table with Capt. F. M. Passow on the voyage were:

NOTES OF THE THEATRE.
Taylor Holmes, who is playing in "The Third Party" at the Shubert Theatre, had the title of the play brought home to him yesterday when they arrived at the Holmes menage a girl baby. Mrs. Holmes was Edna Phillips and appeared with Mr. Holmes in "The Commuters." Last evening in the play Walter Jones made several allusions to the new arrival and during the supper scene celebrated the event by opening a magnum of real champagne.

easy time preparing for his American debut. Having been compelled to surrender many of his animals when they arrived here, he is now devoting half of his time to training four deer and a fox. His regular rehearsals are held every morning on the stage of the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, while in the afternoon he puts in several hours at the Bronx Zoo with his newly-acquired dumb actors.

Ernest Glendinning, who is under contract to Cohan & Harris to create the principal role of "Wanted, $2,000," is marooned in the European war zone. Mr. Glendinning has been travelling with his father, John Glendinning, while the latter toured the English provinces in "The Story of the Rosary."

Stage hands prevented W. A. Brady from producing "Sylvia Runs Away" at Aubrey Park last night. They held, as members of the union, that as the play was given out of New York it should have a travelling stage crew.

"The Dancing Duchess," the musical comedy that opens the Casino on Monday night, was produced last night at Long Branch. John Hyman, Lella McIntyre, Ada Lewis, Flavia Araro, William Burrows and Harry Davenport are members of the company.

Arthur Black has resigned his role in "Sari" to report at Ottawa, Ont., as lieutenant in the Governor-General's Foot Guards.

NEW SUBWAY STATION TO BE OPENED MONDAY

Depot Under Municipal Building
Will Alleviate Congestion at Brooklyn Bridge.

Bridge Commissioner Kracke announced to-day that the subway station under the Municipal Building, part of the four-track B. R. T. Centre street loop system, will be opened on Monday. The station is the largest subway depot in the city and will greatly relieve the congestion in the stations already completed on the loop. It will be two months, Commissioner Kracke said, before the subway connection at the Brooklyn Bridge will be completed and the B. R. T. elevated trains can make the round trip via both the Brooklyn and Williamsburg bridges. In the meantime the Municipal Building station will be used as a terminus for the trains now operating on the Williamsburg Bridge and in the Centre street loop.

Workmen to-day completed an eighty-foot passageway connecting the new station with the old subway station at the Brooklyn Bridge. On Monday eight exits, four in each direction, and two entrances, one in the north and one in the south building, will be opened to the public. The wooden partitions which have concealed the progress of the work are being torn down, and the workmen to-day put in their time cleaning up the debris.
